Checkpoint

Language skills. Knowledge of an official language of the country is a key for employment and further successful integration

Ensuring access to information in a language a victim understands and is in line with the individual situation and needs

Ensuring safety and reasonable standards of living

Economic, social and political empowerment

Helping to achieve stability, positive social connections and cultural knowledge

Obstacles

- 6 Self-stigma and losing of self-worth
- 5 Educational skills. Some trafficked persons might be illiterate or only speak their mother tongue, so it is very difficult for them to even attend lessons
- 4 Trauma and mental health. Trafficked persons might be so traumatised that it is difficult for them to use or benefit from language lessons or educational courses because they are in such a vulnerable psychological situation
- 3 A trafficked person might not be willing to report to the police and participate in criminal proceedings
- 2 A trafficked person might experience stress, anger, shame and feeling of insecurity
- 1 A trafficked person might be threatened

Checkpoint

Legal status of a trafficked person is a prerequisite for further integration, however it automatically does not provide access to integration measures.

Plan of assistance, including integration plan

A service provider should draft a plan of assistance for a trafficked person which is to be updated regularly based on the changes in the trafficked person's circumstances and needs. The role of municipal child welfare services is crucial when the trafficking victim is a child.

Multi-level cooperation

(national, regional, local) especially at an early stage of rehabilitation. There should be constant flexibility and a fast decision-making process.
